Nvidia's Huang Scores a Win With Trump. The Lesson for Netflix and Paramount.

Tue, 09 Dec 2025 23:01:17 +1100

- **Nvidia's Political Maneuvering**: CEO Jensen Huang successfully secured permission from President Trump to sell advanced H200 AI chips to China, contingent on persuading the Chinese government for market access, a critical step given China's high demand for technology. - **Stock Implications**: Nvidia's stock remains closely tied to geopolitical dynamics, with recent developments reflecting potential growth opportunities but also regulatory challenges. The company faces scrutiny from U.S. lawmakers as chip smuggling operations come under fire. - **Industry Lessons**: The newsletter highlights the importance of lobbying and political savvy in corporate strategy. Netflix and Paramount executives are advised to observe Huang's approach as they navigate regulatory hurdles in their competitive bid for Warner Bros. Discovery. - **Market Outlook Event**: Upcoming discussions on the 2026 market outlook, set for December 11, will cover economic positioning strategies and investment opportunities, notably in AI and gold sectors.

The Fed's Divided on Rates. Why Stock Markets Can Rise Through 2026 Anyway.

Wed, 10 Dec 2025 22:28:50 +1100

- **Market Outlook Amid Fed Uncertainty**: The Federal Reserve is currently divided on interest rate decisions, likely leading to a rate cut this week, but with only a 20% chance of another cut in January. Conflicting economic indicators, such as slowing job growth and persistent inflation above target, are complicating the outlook. - **Stock Performance Resilience**: Despite the Fed's stance, stocks may continue to rise through 2026. The S&P 500 has achieved close to 20% gains for three consecutive years with strong earnings growth, suggesting that valuations remain relatively healthy. - **AI and Inflation Trends**: Artificial intelligence trends are sustaining market momentum, though concerns about a potential bubble persist. Additionally, gold prices are near record highs, reflecting ongoing inflation fears. - **Actionable Insights**: Investors are encouraged to stay optimistic about stock performance despite interest rate uncertainties and to consider portfolio positioning for the expected market conditions in 2026. A discussion event on this topic is scheduled for December 11.

Coherent: Indium Phosphide Capacity to Double, Data Center to Reaccelerate to 10% QoQ

Wed, 10 Dec 2025 01:36:04 +0000

- Coherent's Capacity Expansion: The company plans to double its indium phosphide (InP) capacity through a comprehensive expansion strategy, which includes increasing wafer sizes to enhance output and reduce costs. - Data Center Growth: Coherent anticipates a reacceleration in its data center segment with projected quarterly growth of 10%, up from 4% in the current quarter, driven by heightened demand for InP-based EML lasers and transceivers. - Product Demand: Strong demand is expected for Coherent's 800G and 1.6T transceivers, with the latter significantly contributing to growth in the upcoming quarters. The transition to both EML-based and CW laser-based silicon photonics transceivers allows agile capacity shifts based on customer preference. - AI Revenue Exposure: Approximately 69% of Coherent's revenue is attributed to its data center and communications sectors, reflecting substantial exposure to the growing AI market. Investors may consider monitoring Coherent's performance closely, particularly in light of its expanding capacities and predicted growth trends in the data center segment.

What I am Chattering about as the Wind howls across the Sunshine Skyway

Tue, 9 Dec 2025 12:12:25 -0000

- Market Overview: U.S. futures are slightly positive, with the S&P; 500 incrementally up while major stocks such as Nvidia (NVDA) and Micron Technology (MU) see fluctuations. European indices are mixed, with the DAX showing gains mainly due to defense spending headlines, while energy and miner stocks exert pressure across markets. - Key Economic Data: Today is notable for employment data releases: ADP Weekly Payroll Data at 8:15 AM, and JOLTS Data at 10 AM, alongside retail sales data. Market focus will also be on the U.S. Treasury auction of 10-Year Notes at 1 PM. - Commodity Movements: Gold and silver prices are rebounding; however, industrial metals are experiencing declines, with copper dropping 1.3%. The energy sector is mixed as WTI oil attempts to recover ahead of the EIA's monthly Short-Term Energy Outlook. - Actionable Insights: Traders should prepare for potential volatility based on the employment data and its impact on Fed hints of a "Hawkish Cut." Monitor commodity prices closely, particularly any arising trends in energy and metals markets.

WHAT TRADERS ARE WATCHING THIS AM

Tue, 9 Dec 2025 12:58:35 -0000

- Federal Reserve Insights: Traders are anticipating a nearly certain 25-basis point rate cut during the Fed's upcoming meeting, with an 85% probability reflected in interest-rate futures. The delayed October job openings report (JOLTS) is also set for release today, which could influence the Fed's decision. - Market Movements: Wall Street expects a rate cut to boost the S&P; 500. However, options are pricing in a potential volatility increase, foreseeing a nearly 1% swing on Fed day—the largest since March. - Business Sentiment: The NFIB report indicates a rise in small business optimism in November, largely driven by improved sales expectations, as 15% of owners anticipate higher sales in the coming months. - China's Semiconductor Strategy: Beijing plans to limit access to Nvidia's advanced H200 chips despite recent U.S. export allowances, creating potential complexities for semiconductor markets. Meanwhile, Apple continues to see stock resilience, now boasting a $4.1 trillion market cap.

What I am Chattering about as the Sun Rises over Key Royale Golf Club

Wed, 10 Dec 2025 12:20:25 -0000

- Market Overview: US futures dipped slightly ahead of the Fed meeting, with the Nasdaq down 30 basis points, while the S&P; and Russell also saw marginal declines. European markets displayed mixed results; the DAX fell 50 basis points, while the FTSE gained 30 basis points due to gains in oil and mining stocks. Asian markets were predominantly weaker, led by a 10 basis point decline in the Nikkei. - Key Economic Events: Today's significant events include the release of the Employment Cost Index at 8:30 AM, the Bank of Canada Rate Decision (expected to remain unchanged) at 9:45 AM, and the FOMC Rate Decision at 2 PM. Market participants will be closely watching for any hawkish signals from Fed Chair Jerome Powell during the press conference at 2:30 PM. - Commodity Movements: Notable movements included copper up 1.4% and silver continuing its ascent, while gold showed early signs of weakness. The WTI crude oil price increased slightly following a reported draw in crude stocks, although gasoline stocks surged significantly. Natural gas prices fell by approximately 15% this week. - Actionable Insights: Investors should remain cautious ahead of the Fed's announcements, particularly regarding interest rate projections and potential market reactions to Powell's comments. Monitoring commodity performance may also present trading opportunities.

WHAT TRADERS ARE WATCHING AHEAD OF THE FOMC AND ORCL

Wed, 10 Dec 2025 13:24:42 -0000

- FOMC Rate Decision Preview: The Federal Reserve is anticipated to implement a quarter-point interest rate cut, potentially lowering rates to a range of 3.5% to 3.75%. However, the committee remains divided, with notable dissent expected. - Market Reactions and Trends: The 10-year Treasury yield has recently increased to 4.2%, reaching 10-week highs, while silver prices have surged above $60 an ounce. Analysts predict a "hawkish cut," signaling a higher threshold for future rate reductions. - Labor Market Insights: Job openings in the U.S. rose to 7.67 million in October, the highest in five months. Yet, an increase in layoffs and diminished hiring indicates ongoing labor market slowdowns. - Actionable Recommendations: Investors should monitor the FOMC meeting closely for any signals regarding dissent and future monetary policy. Additionally, understanding projections around the balance sheet and potential rate cuts into 2026 will be crucial for long-term positioning.

Market Bullets: GE Vernova soars on U.S. pact, JPMorgan slumps nearly 5%, Palantir nets Navy contract

Wed, 10 Dec 2025 13:57:19 +0000 (UTC)

- Market Overview: The S&P; 500 decreased by 0.09%, the Nasdaq increased by 0.13%, and the Dow fell by 0.38%. The Russell 2000 reached a new intraday record amid expectations of an interest rate cut, while the broader market showed mixed results. - Key Stock Movements: GE Vernova (GEV) shares surged 10% following a partnership with the U.S. government to secure yttrium supplies. In contrast, JPMorgan (JPM) shares plummeted 4.7% after announcing higher-than-expected 2026 costs, marking its largest drop in eight months. Palantir (PLTR) shares rose 1.3% after winning a $448 million Navy contract. - Actionable Insights: Investors should monitor GE Vernova's developments closely due to potential supply chain impacts on energy and aerospace sectors. While JPMorgan's stock might appear vulnerable, the strategic investments could yield long-term benefits; caution is advised. Homedepot's weak outlook suggests reconsidering position in retail stocks ahead of fiscal 2026 forecasts.
